

The daring adventures of Oscar and Oona

C G
Oscar and Oona were playing on the dune and challenging each other to a dare
C
Oscar said “Well, I would go into a wild wood and wrestle with a grizzly bear
F all the lions and tigers, centipedes and spiders wouldn’t ever scare me in the least
C G C
I’d be so courageous, I would be rampageous, feared by every hairy beast”

C G
Oona said “What a sauce, well I could tame a wild horse riding in the roughest rodeo
however much he bucked he wouldn’t ever chuck me, I’d even ride a buffalo
F
everyone would cheer me, everyone would fear me, everyone would stand in awe
C G C
I would be a sell out, everyone would yell out, calling for my grand encore”

C G
“Very well”, said Oscar, “I think I could cross the desert on a camel with two humps
C
I’d win all the races in all of the oases, I wouldn’t even feel the bumps
F
and if I met a dragon riding in a wagon, I’d would run that dragon through and through
C G C
it cannot be denied by anyone that I’d be bolder than a cockerdoodledoo”

C G
“Piffle poo”, said Oona, “I’d be a balloonner, flying through the air at such a speed
everyone who saw me would instantly applaud me, flying like a tumbleweed”

F
“That’s enough”, said Oscar, “we may as well just toss for who is the most daring, you or me
C G C
“Better still”, said Oona, “let’s just say it’s true we’re both of us as daring as can be”
